MEDICINAL.

Its properties are Demulcent, Nutritive, Balamic, Soothing and Healing. Combining all thoso qualitica, it is the most effective LUNG BALEAM over offered to sufferers from pulmonary dienstes. Dr. J. F. HAY WOOD, of New York, volun tarily inderses it. Read what he says:

New York, Sept. 19, 1877.
Dr. Tutt: Dear Sir-During this year I trestod nise hundred cases of lung diseases. In the lower wards of the city the cases were of a very severe type. It was there my attention was eslied to Tutt's Expecterant, and I confess my surprise at its wonderful power. During a practice of twenty years I have never known a medicine to act as promptly and with such happy cliecis. It instantly subdued the most violen its of coughing, and invariably cured the disease in a few days. I cheerfully endorse it as the lest lung medicine I ever used.

Dr. Tutt: Doar Sir-My little son was attack-ed with pneumonia last winter, which left him with a violent cough that lasted till within a meath since, for the cure of which I am indebt ed to your valuable Expectorant. I had tried most everything recommended, but none did may good until I used your Expectorant, one ettle of which removed the cough entirely. With many thanks, I am yours truly,

Dr. Tutt: Sir-I have been suffering for neary two years with a severe cough. When I ly two years with a severe cough. commenced taking your Expectorant I was reduced to one hundred and sixteen pounds in weight. I had tried almost everything; had terrible night swests. I have taken half dozen bottles. The night awests have left me, the cough has disappeared, and I have gained fifteen pounds in flesh. I recommend it to all my friends. With great respect, OLIVER RICE.

Do you have a fit of coughing on lying down? A sharp pain now and then in a region of the heart, shoulders and back? Arabian Rights.

The largest, best and most popular collection of stories is that contained in the "Arabian Nights' Entertainment." The plan of this work is very simple. The stories are supposed to have been related, in short pertions, night after night for rather early each morning,] during a thousand and one nights, by a lady with an excellent memory, always breaking off at a striking incident, so as to induce the listener to wish, like O.iver Twist, for "more." She-stated to have been a queen by marriage

-so much amused her husband by these stoties as at last to induce him to break his wick. ed vow of taking a fresh wife every day, on condition that the was to be s'ain next morning. lo Turkey, Asia Miner, Pers a and Arabia, which are called Oriental equatries, the custom long has been for a class of persons skilled in that art to obtain a hvelihood by reciting wild and wondrous stories. Sometimes this is done in the houses where travelers obtain lodging and food; sometimes the listeners gather even in the street while the tale is being told, with a pause at the most startling i.e.dent, during which, as with our street organ players; small coins are contributed by the more liberal-it unflaished, without such payment in advance. The history of the "Arabian Nights," which is read all over the world with equal faver, is very curious. Scuely anything was known of them in the greater part of Europe until early in the last century, when Antoine Galland, a Frenchman, who had acquired a thorough knowledge of the Acabie language, who had long resided in Constantinople, who had frequently listened to the story tellers in the coltee houses, and who had finally obtained a manuscript copy, in Arabic, devoted bimse'f to the production of a translation of the whole into

was published to 1704 From this, versions in most of the modern languages of Europe have been made; in Eogland alone there are ten. The latest, and most accurate, was that by the late Edward William Lane, who had long resided in Egpyt, and beheved that the work had been composed in that country, its language being, not pure Arabic,

It is morely gussed, not known, that the "Arabian Nights" was written, by various persons, not earlier than the fifteenth contury, alter the Arabians had corqured Constantinople. It is known, too, M. Calland did not translate, and probably had not obtained, even a third of the stories that were carrent in the East in his time. Many of the incidents are of great autiquity, evidently taken from very accient writers. The flying horse of bronze was known in fietion (in Chaucer's stery of "Cambuscan Bold") five hundred years ago. The escape of Sinbad from the burial cave has its original in Plutarch's account of the escape of Aristomenes. The queen, whose magic art changes the king of the Black Islands into a miserable object—half man half marble—and Queen Lab, who transforms her levers into various animals, are clearly identical with the Circe of the "Olyssey," as drawa by Hem r enerly 3,000 years ago. The black giant, in Cinbad's third voyage, is identical with Polyphonius, who was eve mutered and tricked by Ulysses, as Homer has also related. The mountain of leadstone, which drew all the iron pails out of Prince Agib's ship, is mentioned by Plicy, and the fabulous bird, the rec, appears in an ancient Arabian tale. The tales may be divided into two classes. The first chiefly emsists of advantages-many of them historical-of the Caliph, Harous al-Reschid, who reigned late in the eighth contary. The former contains wild and impossible adventures. in which fairies, geoli and peris largely figure. combings all one way. A braid or switch made The most extraordinary events are told as if in this manner is much superior for looks and they were ordinary matter of f.e., so that the reader is scarcely surprised, when in one story Aladdia uses the slaves of the lemp and of the ring to do his bidding, however extravagant, and in another, Ali Baba, and others, rimply by uttering the words, "Open sesame," this to enter a rebbers' eave, which had been kept closed by magic. It is worthy of notic ;-A advertised on the first page of the Gazette, las characteristic of the Mostern faith, that in thes: Arabiao tales the asme of God is never speken by any believer without an epithet of homego and reverence. - Dr. R. DR. RICHARDSON ON THE USE OF WINE,-Dr. Richardson of Landon, in his recent work on "Total Abstinence," gives this result of his own experience, he having been at one time a moderate drinker: "About 1869 I began to abetain at intervals, from experimental purposes, and finding myself to many ways berefited during the periods of my abstinence, I determined to abstain more systematically, and, if success which so many men feel, and which to weak minded men is often a permanent obstacle, was now the social difficulty of abstinence. What should be done in society? what at my owa table? what at the table of friends? strove to mees this difficulty by acting on a hint from Sir Walter Releigh, that wine should be only used for purposes of restration, and that this acciently was its use. So I abstaiged on all occasions except at the feast, if I may express myself in a simple way. The practice led to another new and unanswerable experience. namely, that however temperate I might be, I was always less healthy after the feast, and far loss disposed to return to the condition of health that was invariably connected with the period of total abstinence. In the face of this observation, repeated over and over again, I determined at last to abstain absolutely.
